

RSAM comes out on top and is selected by the world's largest entertainment company

Secaucus, NJ - March 2008: Relational Security Corporation, provider of the industry's most mature Risk and Compliance Management Software - RSAM™, today announced that RSAM was embraced by the world's largest entertainment company. "I am happy to see that RSAM came out on top again. It is another feather in our cap, especially given the comprehensive requirements of the customer, and their extremely thorough selection process." said Vivek Shivananda, President & CEO of Relational Security.

The requirements list was broad and in-depth across areas such as Risk Assessments, Multi-Regulatory Compliance Assessments, Policy Exception Tracking, Incident Management, and Audit Automation. The scope included many areas of IT as well as several non-IT areas. The selection process included reviews of all tools in our peer group and an in-depth bake-off of the top 2 vendors.

"RSAM's out-the-box templates, functionality and its ability to adapt to their existing environment, processes, and tools were very appealing" said Kevin Day, CTO of Relational Security. "Many customers have already invested heavily in their current processes and tools - they prefer a solution that can leverage existing investments and help them seamlessly transition without the need for excessive customization consulting services. Also, being a global company, this customer needed a highly stable solution that could be distributed easily and integrate with their many technologies, such as proprietary inventories, distributed multi-domain authentication, and more. RSAM fit the bill, and they very happy with the solution."

Some of Relational Security's other global customers include:

- $14b Global Hospitality Company
- $40b Global Pharmaceutical
- $20b Global Medical Supplies Manufacturer
